WARREN COUNTY

Warren County's Fourth of July celebration, the 20th sponsored by the Jaycees, gets off to a big start tonight with the Fun Fair at Beaty Field. It starts at 6 p.m.

The big event of the celebration is the parade at 11 a.m. tomorrow with some 35 major floats (and more coming) scheduled among the 94 units. The parade route is down Conewango from Third to Pennsylvania avenue, up Penn avenue to the American Legion.

Yesterday's water ski show brought hundreds to the riverbank in downtown Warren. It also brought the possibility that a state competition and perhaps a national competition will be held here in the future, making Warren the water ski capital of Pennsylvania.

Other events planned tomorrow: the Youngsville Kiwanis barbecue at 1 p.m. at Beaty Field; the model air show at the same place at 2 p.m.; the fireworks at 10 p.m. and the awarding of the 1967 Cadillac at 11 p.m.

Warren County received $164,259 in Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service payments during 1966, a release by the Department of Agriculture shows. Of this, some $21,099 was spent on administration of the program. One facet of the report shows that local farmers are not taking advantage of subsidies for fishing sites, camping facilities, trailer parks and other recreational facilities. Page B1.

PENNSYLVANIA

Governor Shafer announced Pennsylvania's revenues hit $1,423,850,000 in the general fund during fiscal 1966-67. This was $4.7 million more than he estimated June 1 when he delivered his revenue message to the legislature. Shafer said the figure meant his revenue estimates were "extremely accurate." Page A10.

THE NATION

Ronald Reagan and President Johnson have benefited the most from the governors' meeting just concluded at Jackson Hole, Wyo. Johnson gained the full support of Democrats. Republicans left the door open for Reagan in 1968, and the California governor was busily cutting the ground from under Richard Nixon. Page A9.

THE WORLD

Israel and Egypt both reported outbreaks of fighting in the Suez Canal area, and each blamed the other for starting it. It was an evident breach of the June 10 cease-fire that ended a war in which Israel made fantastic military victories. Israel said the Egyptians opened fire with machine guns, and Egypt said the Israelis attacked east of the canal. Page A8.

SPORTS

The Warren Beverage Baseball Club's opener in the 1967 NBC State Tournament was postponed because of rain last night. The Beverage men are not slated to play until 11 a.m. tomorrow. Page A6.

Youngsville's Ron Blackmer and Fred Knapp of Jamestown took early leads and coasted to victory in the Sportsmen and late model feature at Stateline on Saturday. The Busti, N.Y. track holds its annual Firecracker 50 event tonight. Page A7.

Art Wall, leader going into the final round at the Canadian Open Golf Tournament took a bogey on the last hole yesterday and finished in a tie for first place with Billy Casper. The pair will be matched up in an 18-hole playoff today. Page A7.

The Chicago Cubs, who haven't finished in the first division in 22 years, tripped Cincinnati yesterday while St. Louis was splitting a doubleheader with the New York Mets to gain a tie with the Cardinals for the National League lead. Detroit and Boston gained ground on the Chicago White Sox in the junior circuit with victories, the Tigers blanking the White Sox, 3-0. Page A6.

French Amateur Catherine La Coste hung on to win the 22nd Women's National Open Golf Championship yesterday despite five bogeys on the final round. She won by two strokes over Susie Maxwell and Beth Stone. Page A7.

In the best shape of his life, World lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz retained his title Saturday night with a fourth round TKO over Sugar Ramos at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

IT ALL BALANCES OUT

These three water skiers were among those who thrilled hundreds of spectators in Warren's first water ski show yesterday along the Allegheny River in downtown Warren. The show paved the way for state and possible regional competition along the stretch of water, which expert skiers said was ideal for the sport. (Photo by Mahan)

Hundreds of Spectators View Water Ski Show

Warren had its first water ski show yesterday as a kickoff to its "bigger and better" Independence Day celebration. Zipping along behind boats, floating on kites, and jumping from the water ski jump on the Allegheny River below Hickory Street Bridge were members of the Sandy Lake Water Ski Club. Hundreds of spectators lined the river banks on both sides and the Hickory Street Bridge to view the hours-long show.

Two former national water ski champions were enthusiastic about the potential of the Allegheny River for water skiing. Ray McCracken of the Sandy Lake club said the stretch of water was the "finest I've ever seen." Bill Jordan of the Conneaut Lake club agreed. The skiers, in addition to being pleased with water conditions, gave a pat on the back to the Warren Jaycees and 15 local carpenters who donated their time to build the water ski jump ramp used in the show. The wax job, they said, was the best they've ever found on jumps they have used. Jaycee Vic Miller was given the lion's share of the credit

- for ironing out the problem. Twenty-five events were staged by the club for the show. They were:
1. Boat parade.
 2. Flag routine: Bonnie Lombardo, Collette Sahiberg, Maggie Jordan, Marty VanSlyke and Janet Zuchonski.
 3. Flying saucer ride: Bill Lee.
 4. Three-man slalom: Don Blank, Bill Petratus and Bill Jordan.
 5. Baton twirl (two girls pulling by same boat twirling batons) Bonnie Lombardo and Collette Sahiberg.
 6. Single ski and slalom exhibition by 9 year-old Perry McCracken.
 7. Distance jumps by Maggie Jordan (National Champion).
 8. Variety act: Marty VanSlyke, Brian Stafford and Bill Jordan.
 9. Clown act: Bill Main (National Champion).
 10. Trick Demonstration: Jim Lee attempting a full somersault from the high jump board.
 11. Three-man pyramid: Marty VanSlyke, Doug Morris and Don Blank.
 12. Exhibition of trick skiing by Maggie Jordan: single ski

- 360-degree turns, skiing backwards holding tow bar with foot.
13. Jumping clowns: Brian Stafford, Bill Petratus and Ed Morris.
14. Barefoot skiing from deepwater start by Bill Main.
15. Mixed doubles (girl performing acrobatics on man's shoulders) Bill and Maggie Jordan.
16. Exhibition of trick skiing on 8-inch skis by Ray McCracken.
- 17,18,19. Long distance jumping: Bill Petratus, Brian Stafford and Bill Jordan.
20. Ballet exhibition: Bonnie Lombardo and Collette Sahiberg.
21. Trick skiing by Perry McCracken.

4th Celebration Officially Begins; 94 Parade Units

Warren County's massive Fourth of July celebration began yesterday and continues through tomorrow in what is probably the most festive spirit in recent years. It promises to be, in the words of the sponsoring Jaycees, the biggest and best yet in their 20 years of promoting it. Yesterday saw for the first time a water ski show on the Allegheny River, with hundreds of spectators lining the river bank on both sides and the Hickory Street Bridge. The show provided members of the Sandy Lake Water Ski Club with an opportunity to try the river for the first time. Their reaction was to propose a state water ski competition in Warren.

a massive display has been purchased and will combine more flashes, flares, bangs and bombardments than the county has ever seen at one time. At 11 p.m., the Fourth of July ceremonies will conclude with the awarding of a 1967 Cadillac. On hand for the ceremonies will be Congressman Albert Johnson, Mayor Donald Conaway, Miss Pennsylvania, and various civic officials. Judging the event will be members of the All-American Judges Association, Pennsylvania chapter. Jim Senger heads the panel.

Among those on hand will be a group of men seeing an American Independence Day celebration for the first time. They are the Japanese foresters who have been touring the country and are spending a week in Warren County. They will be in the parade tomorrow, lined up in

DRIVE AROUND LAKE

List Reservoir Sites for Fourth

The U. S. Forest service, in a situation report just issued, listed 20 areas open for public use in the Allegheny Reservoir area. In addition, the report, dated Friday, said that it is possible now to drive completely around the reservoir.

"There is a one-mile stretch of narrow unpaved road just north of the New York-Pennsylvania line on the west side. New York 17 is not open south-east of Steamburg, but by going through Salamanca and using Allegheny State Park Roads 1 and 3, it is possible to make a complete and exciting circuit of the entire reservoir area. "The mountain laurel is in full bloom, further enhancing the pleasure of driving." The report noted that the Jake's Rocks road is open and has been graded and rolled for blacktopping. The access road to Kiasutha (FS 262 from Pa. 321) is being paved and is open to one-way traffic. Those areas open for public use this Fourth of July:

WEST SIDE

1. Roper Hollow--boat launching.
2. Wades Woods--camping.
3. Blueberry Hill development--golf course & cabins.
4. Hooks Brook--boat access camping.
5. Fishburn Run (where the old Scandia-Onoville Road enters the water)--undeveloped boat launch.

EAST SIDE

1. Allegheny State Park--swimming, picnicking and camping.
 2. Willow Bay--under construction, open for boat launching; no toilets or water.
 3. Handsome Lake
 4. Hopewell--boat access campground between Willow Bay and Sugar Bay.
 5. Sugar Bay--undeveloped boat launching; water shallow.
 6. Pine Grove--boat access campground between Sugar Bay and Wolf Run Marina.
 7. Wolf Run Marina--under construction; temporary toilets, boat rentals and some other marina services.
 8. Rimrock--overlook and picnic ground; access road is paved and open; drive carefully--low shoulders.
 9. Morrison Run--boat access campground; under construction--open for camping; no water.
 10. Kiasutha--under construction--open for camping, picnicking, swimming and boat launching; reach from Kane on Pa. 321 or from Ludlow on Kinzua rd. to Pa. 34.
 11. Jake's Rocks--overlook and picnic area.
 12. Kinzua Dam Observation Point--overlook near Kinzua Dam.
- Pennsylvania 321 has been improved toward Kane and Pa. 59 improved from Kinzua Dam to U. S. 6.

July Fourth Parade Has 35 Floats

Some 35 floats, 10 drum and bugle corps, and several bands and marching units will team up tomorrow to form the bulk of the parade through Warren. The parade route will be from Conewango and Third to Pennsylvania, up Pennsylvania through the downtown district to the American Legion, and terminate there.

The parade has 94 units this year. Leading the parade will be parade chairman Ron Quick-sall and the U.S. Marine Corps color guard. The honorable Albert Johnson, congressman from this district, will be among the dignitaries present. Miss Pennsylvania, Doris Ann Lausch of Lancaster, will be in the parade. Drum and bugle corps from all over the Northeastern United States will participate. Four of them will compete at 3 p.m. at War Memorial field for $1,100 in prize money. The Blue Jay Job Corps camp near Marienville again will have a float and a marching unit. New entries for floats this year are the Warren Times-Mirror and Observer and the Sheffield Chamber of Commerce.

Motorcycles Number One Problem Now

The Pennsylvania Bureau of Traffic Safety issued a "two-pronged" warning to motorists and cyclists alike today, to extend the courtesies of the highways to each other, in an effort to avoid tragic holiday accidents.

The appeal was made in view of the astounding statistical increases being experienced in the Commonwealth with the advent of the motorcycle craze. In four years, 1963 through 1966, the number of motorcycles registered in Pennsylvania increased 145 percent. During the same period highway fatalities involving motorcycle operators increased from 30 in 1963 to 54 in 1966, or 180 percent.

"The trend we are experiencing in Pennsylvania, with regard to motorcycles, calls for action by both the motorist and the cyclist," Commissioner Harry H. Brainerd of the Bureau said. "Not only must the cyclist exert added caution, the driver of the automobile must also learn to share the highways with the motorcycle. The holiday period will undoubtedly attract more than the normal number of motorcycles to our highways."

For the cyclist:

"Keep your speed down; wear proper protective attire, such as a crash helmet and goggles; do not dart and weave in and out of traffic; be aware that you must obey the same laws and regulations as the auto operator; never follow cars too closely; do not take advantage of a motorcycle's size in order to pass on the right where you are not visible to the motorist."

For the motorist:

"Keep a safe distance behind a motorcycle, so that you can always stop in time; be especially alert for motorcycles at intersections, since they are not as visible in the traffic pattern as are automobiles; allow a full lane when passing a motorcycle."

The Commissioner urged both motorcycle owners, as well as drivers, to have their vehicles inspected prior to the holiday.

Arsonist Burns Erieite's Home

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Donald Cutrie looked at the peeling paint and cracked plaster in his Erie home and remarked, "I just don't know of anyone who is that mad at me to do this for revenge."

Authorities say an arsonist touched off a flash fire that whipped the fashionable home Saturday, causing about $7,000 damage. The home was being redecorated, and nobody was living in it.

John Grenberg, chief fire inspector of Erie, said several cans of an inflammable solvent were found inside the home. He said the force of the explosion snuffed out the flames, but before they had scored the interior.

Cutrie is an Erie insurance broker.

Queen's Yacht Is Threatened

CORNWALL, Ont. (AP) — Frogmen searched the blue hull of the royal yacht Britannia for bombs yesterday before she sailed down the St. Lawrence River carrying Queen Elizabeth II to Expo 67 at Montreal.

French-speaking terrorists have threatened a "patriotic act" against the ship.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police officials ordered helicopters and small river launches to patrol the approximately 75-mile route. A group called the Quebec Liberation Movement said last week that French-Canadian "patriots" will be at work some-where on the route of the Britannia in the St. Lawrence River and in the St. Lawrence Seaway, "our territorial waters."

The Quebec separatists' calling card was found with a bomb last week at the City Hall of Chambly, a town near Montreal. Police defused the homemade device before it could explode.

The queen, in Canada with her husband, Prince Philip, for the nation's 100th anniversary of statehood Saturday, attended church services in Ottawa before heading here by car to be piped aboard the 5,000-ton vessel.

For church, the queen wore a two-piece blue silk costume and a canary yellow straw hat. Prince Philip wore a light brown suit.

The royal yacht has thick carpets, a special movie theater and a year-round crew of 225 who wear speakers, not so much for traction as for noiselessness. The vessel crossed the Atlantic to Canada last week.

The queen's trip to Expo carefully avoids bringing her into Quebec Province, where she faced hooting anti-British demonstrators in 1964.

The Expo islands in the St. Lawrence are considered "international" territory and the queen will not be received officially in Quebec.

Legion Teams With Police For Safe 4th

The American Legion and the Pennsylvania Bureau of Traffic Safety have combined forces to promote traffic safety during the five-day July 4 holiday weekend.

Continuing their award-winning program initiated several years ago, members of the various posts of the American Legion in Pennsylvania will again distribute safety literature to motorists prior to the forthcoming July 4 weekend, according to the Pennsylvania Bureau of Traffic Safety.

More than 125,000 three-by-nine inch cards, provided by the Bureau will be distributed by Legionnaires to gas stations, and other public locations. The literature urges motorists to exert every precaution while driving during the holiday weekend.

"The American Legion is to be commended for its continuing effort to keep Pennsylvania highways safe. The army of Legionnaires will be able to achieve results that can only be accomplished by an organized group of thousands of persons. Their efforts are greatly appreciated," Commissioner Harry H. Brainerd of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Traffic Safety said.

Last year special recognition by the Governor was accorded all the Posts cooperating in the program, when they received the Governor's Award for Outstanding Contribution to Traffic Safety in December. More than 100 Posts qualified.

2 Erie Youths Killed in Crash

JAMESTOWN — Two Erie youths were fatally injured in an automobile accident, on Route 20 about three quarters of a mile from the Pennsylvania state line.

Dead at the Westfield Memorial Hospital was Dennis Bailey, 19 and Bonnie Lynn Roller, 20, both of Erie. The dead girl's sister, Faith Roller, 17, is listed in fair condition at the Westfield Hospital, while a fourth occupant of the car Diane Cornelius, 19, of Harbor Creek, Pa. was transferred from Westfield Memorial Hospital to Hamot Hospital in Erie, where she is said to be in poor condition.

The police at Fredonia said that the auto driven by Bailey was passing a car on route 20, about 1 a.m. Sunday July 2, when the accident occurred. Bailey's car first side-swiped the other car, then went out of control and overturned, police said.

Siberia spans nine time zones. It is half again larger than the contiguous United States, yet holds fewer residents than New York and New England combined, the National Geographic says.

Grand Valley Man Sought by Police

JAMESTOWN — Chautauqua County Sheriff's Department is looking for a Grand Valley, Pa. man who walked away from Chautauqua County jail sometime between 2:30 p.m. and 3:00 p.m. yesterday afternoon.

The suspect is George Miller, 43, who had been in jail on a criminal negligence charge involving a fatal accident on the Hunt road, last summer.

The deputies said that Miller was given a post of trustee at the jail. They identified Miller as 6 feet tall and 200 pounds, with blond hair and blue eyes.

Freedom and the Fourth

July 4 and Freedom are synonymous to all Americans. It should be this way.

Unfortunately, there is a tendency today to forget the fact our Freedom was born during an era of extreme self-discipline and restraint.

While this lack of freedom bearing discipline is evident in many walks of life today, perhaps the one way it becomes most evident is in the tragic statistics that accompany a holiday weekend on the highway.

The Freedom that started in 1776 was not meant to be a Freedom to Die. Rather, it was meant to be a

Galbraith On Vietnam

WASHINGTON—John Kenneth Galbraith, the Harvard economist and former United States Ambassador to India, is now coming to the fore as the most articulate spokesman of the scattered Vietnam peace forces in America.

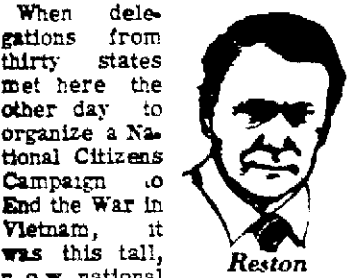

When delegations from thirty states met here the other day to organize a National Citizens Campaign to End the War in Vietnam, it was this tall, now national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, who defined the case for ending the fighting.

This may prove to be an important political fact. The peace movement has been divided and leaderless. Senators Robert Kennedy and J. William Fulbright have found the task too arduous and politically dangerous to provide consistent leadership. Walter Lippmann, who was the most audible opposition voice for a time, has now stopped writing his twice-weekly column, and the movement has seemed listless and depressed through most of the spring and summer.

Galbraith, striding into this vacuum, seems to be doing two things. He is trying to find for Vietnam what he calls a "moderate solution"—some where "between those who want the catharsis of total violence and those who want the comforts of total escape" and he may even be trying to rally the opponents of the war into an effective force before the 1968 Presidential election.

His theme is as follows: +Almost all the official assumptions on which the United States entered the war, he asserts, have been disproved by events. The Communist world is not a unified menace to the free world, as we once thought, but "as fallen apart in a savage theological Sino-Soviet conflict. China cannot even control itself, let alone control Hanoi, which has asserted its independence

MASON DENISON

Kurtzman Overdue

Pennsylvania News Service HARRISBURG — The appointment of Dr. David H. Kurtzman as the new head of Pennsylvania's sprawling, cumbersome and outmoded about educational system is as interesting as it is long overdue.

When Governor Shaddad named the 63-year-old bespectacled Chancellor Emeritus of the financially plagued, status-struggling University of Pittsburgh to the post of State Superintendent of Public Instruction, he unquestionably chose one of the smartest men in the business—although it is questionable as to whether it quite reaches the over-enthusiastic accolade accorded Dr. Kurtzman by the Governor when he referred to him as an administrator and educator without parallel in the state, "and, indeed throughout America."

The "throughout America" bit in the opinion of most observers in Capitol Hill is stretching it a little too far. But the appointment itself is interesting from several standpoints.

In the first place it is rather unique one from that standpoint that Governor Shaddad, who so far in these past six months as Pennsylvania's newest chief executive has hewed a rather overboardish attitude on politics, partisanship (Republican, the is) in the throwing together of his administration—personnel-wise, policy-wise, strategy-wise.

Dr. Kurtzman on the other hand, it will be recalled, served as Secretary of Administration during the tenure of the late Democratic Governor David L. Lawrence.

Two points about this phrase are worth noting. First of all, the appointment should somewhat mollify grumbling legislative Democrats who, although in the minority in both House and Senate, are in a fetching but unexpected strategic position in that casualty-ridden Republicans must rely on Democrats for legislative aid and assistance.

Secondly, the new DPI chief's background is a solid one no matter how you look at it—even in the eyes of Republicans who worked with him during the Democratic tenure of Governor Lawrence (who minored him into his governmental post from his esteemed position at the time with the non-political Pennsylvania Economy League).

There is a touch of irony though to the whole thing from this standpoint:

When Dr. J. Ralph Rackley was named to the DPI post by former Governor Scrantom in September of 1965 he at that time was a vice president of Pennsylvania State University, a fact that in the less than two years he served in the post was to haunt him—from the standpoint, it was feared, that his association with Penn State would influence him in favor of Penn State in matters orbiting the realm of higher education in Pennsylvania.

Actually, Dr. Rackley bent over backward—many felt too far back—to avoid this very thing. Nevertheless, sensitive lawmakers along with educational partisans oftentimes were prone to jump on his back at this point of his former association with Penn State (He's back at Penn State now as Provost).

The question now is whether a similar clamor will be set in the case of Dr. Kurtzman due to his relationship with the University of Pittsburgh, now a full-blooded "state related" university in virtually the same status as Penn State—particularly in the realm of finances via state subsidy!

There is perhaps an outstanding difference between Dr. Rackley and Dr. Kurtzman on this particular front in that during the course of his 26 years with the Pennsylvania Economy League and his topslot tenure during the Lawrence Administration he had lived with legislative "problems" whereas Dr. Rackley had not.

This fact could be most important in determining the degree of success—personally or professionally—Dr. Kurtzman may enjoy his new role as head of education in Pennsylvania.

Keep Tires Up

It is a fact, tires that do not contain the proper air pressure are more subject to flats than those properly inflated, according to the manufacturers' recommendations. This July 4 weekend, be sure your tires are included in the pre-trip check that you make on your car.

from Peking. The Viet Cong have proved to be more nationalist than Communist, in defiance of our original beliefs. The Saigon generals have shown little interest in our version of democracy, and the support Washington expected from the non-Communist world and even from many of our own people has proved to be a myth. In short, Washington's original view of the problem in Southeast Asia, and even of its allies and its own people, has proved to be wrong.

+On the other hand, Mr. Galbraith insists that many of the assumptions of the Government's critics have also proven to be wrong. It is "unduly optimistic and also dangerous," he says, for his fellow critics to assume that Hanoi "is only waiting to oblige Americans of goodwill" by reaching a sensible accommodation. The critics of the Government are also wrong in assuming that they have no influence on the Johnson Administration, and that rational alternatives to the policy of escalation no longer exist.

+There is, Mr. Galbraith believes, a "moderate solution," which would reduce our commitments in Vietnam, protect the larger peace, conserve our national interest, and ease the agony of the Vietnamese people.

+First, he says, we must revise our strategic objectives. We are not trying to "roll back" the Communists from positions they have held for many years in Eastern Europe, North Korea and elsewhere, so why should we attempt to root out the Viet Cong from the sparsely populated areas they have controlled for over ten years?

+Second, the offensive strategy of searching out and destroying the Viet Cong in these swamps and jungles is wrong and costly. U.S. casualties last week were 274 dead and 1,255 wounded, bringing the total for the war to 11,323 Americans dead, 68,341 wounded and 674 missing.

+Instead, he suggests, we should go over to a defensive strategy, not merely of retreating into military "enclaves," but of providing "the maximum of security, tranquility and well-being in the limited but populous areas that we control." At the same time, he says, we should stop the bombing in the North, let the enemy take the casualties involved in attacking our fortified positions instead of the other way around, and follow a policy of "active defense" as long as necessary until the enemy agrees to negotiate.

+Finally, we should "disengage ourselves from the political generals to whom we have become committed in Saigon," and recognize that Vietnam is not the crossroads of the world, not a center of great issues of strategy or security, and not a prize for China or the Soviet Union or "international Communism," but merely an area of conflict between a group of squabbling generals in Saigon, on the one hand, and a group of squabbling "nationalist" Communists, on the other.

This, then, is Galbraith's theme—not very dramatic or noble, as he says, but better than what we've got. He is not likely to persuade President Johnson by the power of his arguments, but he may influence him by the power of his association with the university community, and particularly by his power to rally the anti-war students in every state into a political force in the 1968 Presidential campaign.

Galbraith, in his own person, is a formidable character. He believes there is a new and powerful political constituency in the growing university population of this country. He is not only in touch with the restless and questioning young university students, but with the top academic and Government economists and philosophers of the world. Also, he is just old enough (58) and big enough (5'11", 160 lbs.) and Scotch enough to turn the peace movement into a political movement, if this is what he decides to do. And even Lyndon Johnson could scarcely be indifferent to such a combination of brains and guts.

SYLVIA PORTER

Revival of Victory Gardens

How about reviving the World War II "Victory Garden," Mr. and Mrs. America?

No federal government appeal is now planned to urge you to take trowel and garden fork in hand to bring back the home garden. There is only the slimmest chance that you would save even one penny by growing your own food at home, and perhaps then canning or freezing apart of your production.

The time and effort a small home garden demands is considerable and, measured in terms of your pay level, you would probably be working at slave labor rates. Moreover, the cost of fertilizer, insecticides and garden tools can put a significant dent in your purse. And if you go in for machinery, such as a home garden plow or tiller, your costs soar even more.

(The last time we estimated our own costs of growing vegetables at our country home, our tomatoes came to $1.14 apiece, and string beans came to $1.35 a pound.) Nevertheless, there are significant reasons why you might return to the oldtime family vegetable garden, and this goes for you, the comfortable middle-class family as well as the depressed lower-income family.

For instance, the prices you and I pay for vegetables are again slated to rise this summer, because severe freezes and droughts this past winter and spring in many areas of the U.S. have led to sharply reduced supplies.

Home gardens could help many families in lower income brackets offset rising food prices, or at least give them an outlet for their resentment over the price rises and a new way to "boycott" the rises.

Also suggesting a resurgence of the home vegetable garden is the overall boom in flower gardening and home landscaping, now a multi-billion dollar business. Behind this boom in turn, is the steady expansion of our leisure-time, in the form of longer vacations, more paid holidays, more long weekends. For millions of families, gardening has become a key way to fill this extra time.

Another factor, I think, is plain nostalgia for the "good old days" of flavor in fresh foods. While we are enjoying the benefits of modern food-growing and marketing techniques—through which straw berries are now available from coast to coast in February and strings have been genetically removed from our string beans—many of us surely long for the fine taste of vegetables grown at or close to home. We're a decidedly technology-minded nation, but bringing back a variety of the charms of yesterday has become a nationwide hobby.

There will be no Washington-backed drive for more home gardening, I repeat—for obvious political reasons. But officials in private say they would welcome the development as entirely valid. Our once-mountainous surpluses of many key food items have dwindled to nearly nothing. Meanwhile, demand by other nations for U.S. food exports continues to soar and today, an enormous 112 nations import food from the U.S. Last year, we exported a record total of $3.5 billion worth of food, and today, one in four of our harvested acres is for export. A new surge of home gardening here in the U.S., where food-growing conditions are excellent, could free significant amounts of certain foods for export.

In many other parts of the country there is still time to start your garden. I have a suspicion, though, that millions of you have beat city people like me to the garden gate and that this column should be reporting what you already are harvesting rather than suggesting that you plan to plant.

It's All Up

To The Driver

HARRISBURG — The Commonwealth will take every possible precaution to help the holiday driver have a safe and enjoyable weekend.

But in the final analysis it is the driver who will determine whether or not Pennsylvania has a low or high death rate this July 4, Commissioner Harry H. Brainerd of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Traffic Safety said.

Plan for Safety

Before starting on your July 4 holiday trip, make sure your tires, lights, wipers, steering and brakes are in good working order. The Pennsylvania Bureau of Traffic Safety also advises you to take along a first aid kit, emergency flares, and a flashlight.

DREW PEARSON

The Johnson-Kosygin Meet

WASHINGTON—President Johnson has now given a detailed report to the cabinet on his talks with Premier Kosygin at Glassboro. He used picturesque language which only LBJ can use.

He reported that it was Kosygin who first raised the issue of grandparenthood.

"I have been a grandfather for 18 years," said the Russian Premier congratulating the President on his new elevation to fame. "You have been a grandfather only 18 hours. I have seniority over you. But we both want to keep our grandchildren from fighting another war."

Kosygin soon got around to the question of the withdrawal of Israeli troops from Arab territory. Johnson agreed with the general principle of withdrawing troops, but argued that the war would start all over again unless Israel had some safeguards for the future. He reminded Kosygin that Russia had recognized Israel as a country and that the Soviet could not put Israel back into a position of having to defend itself once again against hostile Arab neighbors with no guarantee for safety.

The President proposed ten points for the solution of Near East problems, including refugees, which he told Kosygin had to be taken care of; free passage through the Gulf of Aqaba; and development of both the Arab states and Israel through international cooperation by the larger countries.

The President reported that he made quite a pitch to Kosygin regarding free international waterways. "Russia is a great maritime power and must stand for free international waterways," he told Kosygin. "You must agree with us on the right of transit through the Gulf of Aqaba."

When Kosygin kept coming back to the withdrawal of troops, the President told him: "I have read your speech before the United Nations. There's a lot in that speech with which we agree. But the main thing is to make sure that we don't have war in the Near East again. If we merely insist that Israel withdraw its troops, we'll head for another war. We've got to settle the causes of war first."

In between the two Glassboro talks, Kosygin wired Moscow for instructions but received word to stick to the Moscow line.

It was learned from the American Embassy in Moscow that a special session of the Plenum had been summoned in the Kremlin to discuss the Glassboro summit meeting. The two most moderate members of the Soviet government are Kosygin and President Podgorny. But with one in Glassboro and the other in Egypt, the hard-liners in the Kremlin re-emphasized Soviet policy and wired Kosygin to stand pat.

As a result, he came back to the second Glassboro session a little tougher than in the first.

Several times during their talks Kosygin told the President: "We want peace; you want war." The President did not reply to this at first. He waited about 20 seconds looking Kosygin straight in the eye. Then he leaned over close to him in the same way that Johnson puts his face close to a senator when he's trying to change the Senator's vote.

He told Kosygin that he had not been in Russia and didn't know the country or its people very well. "I'd like to know them better," he said. "But I'm sure that after all they went through at Leningrad and Stalingrad they don't want another war."

Then the President emphasized the attitude of the American people toward war; that they wanted peace more than anything else in the world.

The President also asked Kosygin why Russia had not joined with the United States in opening up the Strait of Tiran. He said that if the Soviet had joined the United States in opening the Strait, there would have been no war.

At one time Kosygin wanted to know why the United States hadn't stopped the Israelis from starting the war. Johnson replied that the United States didn't control the Israelis any more than Russia controlled the Arabs.

Kosygin kept coming back to the charge that the United States was siding with two million Jews against one hundred million Arabs. He seemed to think that the United States should be on the side of the majority. Johnson told him that every country had a right to live, no matter what its size.

All this repartee took place in good humor, without any threats.

Johnson told his cabinet: "We didn't get mad, we didn't call each other names. He didn't try to bulldoze me. He didn't point his finger at me or shout and I didn't do this to him. He acted like a lawyer representing his country in a very matter-of-fact, practical manner."

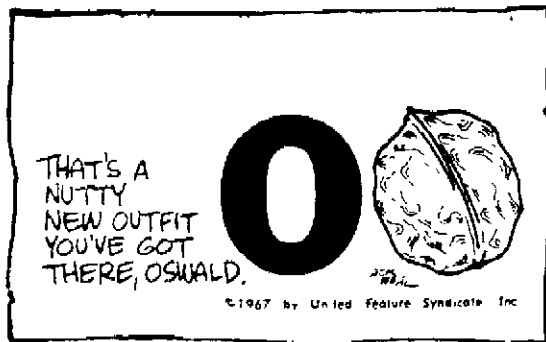

Kosygin told the President how much he had felt the loss of his wife, who died some time ago, and how much he depended upon his daughter whom he brought with him to the United States. Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Richard Hughes, wife of the Governor of New Jersey, took Kosygin's daughter on a tour of the New Jersey beaches which she seemed to enjoy immensely.

Probably the chief benefit of their talks, the President reported, was in the fact that the two men got to know each other. In addition, the President felt that they had made some progress regarding arms limitation and a nuclear non-proliferation pact.

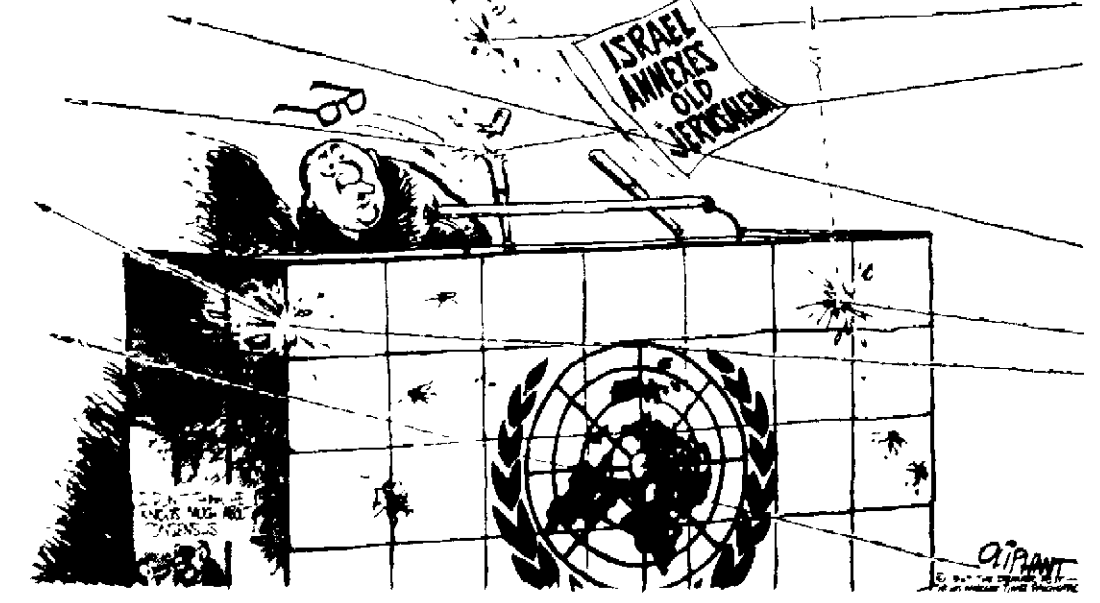

"We agreed there was no use spending a lot of money on arms when we could spend it on schools and hospitals, roads and housing, and make our countries better places to live," the President reported to his cabinet.

RESUMPTION OF HOSTILITIES

JIM BISHOP

Allan Drake Was The Funnyman

Oh, yes. He was funny. The audience rocked when he shouted: "I was so happy over the victory of Israel that I wish I had my old nose back." After a solid hour, they didn't want to let him walk off. "Spending money," he said. "My kid thinks a dime is a tip for an eight-year-old to bring him change for a buck."

Allan Drake has been trying to bring a smile to the world all his life. He is dark and solid and nervous. For a comedian, he's had a poor existence. The West End of Boston was a ghetto. Growing up hungry was a privilege. At 12, the kid was trying to make people laugh so that he wouldn't have to fight.

At Woodrow Wilson High School he was called "a dirty Jew." The kid, whose name was Margolis, was forced to fight. He ached to make the students grin at his jokes, but they respected his left hook. In time, the bottom of his nose was bent toward his teeth and he became an amateur, with seven wins, three losses and one draw.

It was a cockeyed life. He despised himself for hurting others and one day he told his father, the cap maker, that he was leaving home. He went to Miami Beach and drove a taxi. He didn't tell his father that he had achieved popularity with the Boston kids by robbing drugstores of cigarettes, perfume and film. His gang opened the back of a lingerie truck and an alarm clanged.

Allan ran. Police bullets split the air. He dove over a picket fence and went when he saw that his chest and belly had been ripped open like a fish. He bled into his shoes. "Dear God," he moaned, "if you let me get home safe, I'll be good." God took the gamble.

Allan Drake became Little Augie's "boy." He drove the gangster with the flag up and, when the bill was $32, Little Augie gave him $40. Even when the kid went back to Boston to see his parents, he was Little Augie's boy. There he met a successful comic, as big as a chuckle, named Jackie Miles. Miles got Drake a job in the Catskills as a "tumbler."

He was athletic director, life-guard, master of ceremonies, comedian and part-time lover to ladies who were season guests at the hotel. In two years, he was back in Miami, starring at the Paddock. He talked and people laughed. Little Augie owned the Paddock. He laughed hardest.

In June 1944, Drake went to Palisades Park and saw a blonde from St. Michael's High School win a title for having "the most beautiful legs in America." Her name was Janice Hansen. Fourteen months later, Allan married her. For a moment in space, the ghetto kid was in ecstasy. She taught him Catholicism, and he taught her Jewry.

Drake became confident. His salary jumped from $500 a week to $3,000. Janice saved money. Michael was born in 1946. They had a nice apartment in Rego Park. Little Augie came north. Janice didn't care what the newspapers said about the gangster; this was her husband's sponsor. His mentor.

Allan was on the road 25 weeks each year. On Sept. 27, 1959, he was in Washington, part of a Tony Martin show. Janice phoned him from a restaurant on 58th St. in New York. Little Augie was leaving in the morning for Hot Springs, Arkansas, and he wanted to say farewell to his boy.

Janice had to get home because she didn't have a baby sitter. Allan Drake was very funny that night. Little Augie got in his car and drove Janice home. On the way, he stopped at LaGuardia Airport. "I have to meet somebody," he said. Afterward, they drove two blocks. A pal waved Augie to a stop.

Two men approached the car from different sides and drilled bullets through the windows. Little Augie had a .38 in his head. Janice was dead with a .32 in her temple. Only the car engine was running.

Allan Drake wasn't funny anymore. All the ludicrous jokes sounded sad. He drank. For four years, he mourned his Janice. Then he met Wanda Owens, a blonde statue. She was a bunny in a Playboy Club. Drake wanted to know if it is possible to start all over. Or perhaps to just stop weeping.

It is. Now he is married three years. There is a little boy named Cary, and a big boy named Michael, who is studying to be a physician. Allan Drake slips his happiness carefully because he wants it to last.

A fat man listened to the funny lines and held his belly and roared. He wiped his eyes. "That's the funniest comedian I ever heard," he gasped. "He's a riot." He is. . .

OVER THE COUNTER

Credit Squeeze Repeat Seen

By WILLIAM D. SMITH

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—Issues of the American Stock Exchange and the Over-the-Counter market held their own last week.

The American Exchange's index of stock prices closed at $19.98, up 6 cents from the week before.

Trading was moderately active with Friday's 4,342,310 shares the lowest of the week. Volume totaled 24,329,830 shares.

On the Over-the-Counter market trading was also moderately active. The National Quotation Bureau's index of 37 stocks advanced 0.33 from the previous week to 312.14.

Publishing stocks suffered on the Over-the-Counter market as a result of a report that book companies were feeling the pinch of reduced government spending. Harper & Row fell 1/2, while International Textbook dropped 2 1/2.

Energy reports affected other stock movements. The Gerrol Corporation slipped 2 on lower quarterly earnings. American Greetings was up 2 1/2 for the same reason. A drop in earnings for the fiscal year by C. G. Conn Ltd., however, failed to prevent a rise of 1 1/2 in that company's stock.

Andrew Jergens advanced 2 as he continued to benefit from a recent release report of a rise in earnings. Amuseur Busch dropped a point as the company went into registration.

On the American Stock Exchange the most active was Electronic Associates Corporation, which advanced 5/8 to 19 1/2 on volume of 511,200. The second most active was the low-priced Continental Materials Corporation. It advanced 1/2 to 2 on sales of 303,800 shares.

The third most active was Seury-Rainbow Oil, which traded 375,900 shares, although dealings in the issue were halted for a while during the week. It fell 9/16 to 30 1/2.

The fourth most active issue was Rusco Industries, which advanced 3/8 to 6 1/2 on volume of 355,000 shares.

The fifth spot on the most active list was taken by North Canadian Oils Ltd., which continued to benefit from the Middle Eastern crisis. The stock closed at 4 1/2, up 13 1/2, on volume of 305,400.

With Friday's volume, trading on the American for the first six months reached 504,029,573 shares, a record. The previous record was 443,240,437 shares in the first half of 1966.

WEEK IN FINANCE

Week's Markets Hold Their Own

(c) New York Times News Service

NEW YORK—Almost six months ago President Johnson appeared on television and told the nation: "I pledge the American people that I will do everything in the President's power to lower interest rates and to ease money in this country."

For a while the President seemed to be gaining his objective. His powers of persuasion and the Administration's injection of substantial funds into the economy combined to improve conditions in the credit markets, but his words were beginning to take on a hollow ring this week.

Interest rates, the prime topic and concern of the economic and financial world these days, have been climbing steadily and fears of a new credit crunch similar to last summer's critical squeeze are widespread.

It is obviously time for new economic proclamations in Washington—time for action instead of the foot-dragging that characterized last year's response to the over-exuberant growth of the economy.

Last week was a most disturbing one. Interest rates on some top-grade corporate bonds hit 46-year peaks; long-term government bond prices continued to decline and dipped even below last summer's sharply depressed levels; yields on tax-exempt municipal bonds climbed to their highest point since late September, and short-term Treasury bill rates jumped more sharply than at any time in memory, except in reaction to specific changes in rates or policies announced by the Federal Reserve.

The unrelenting upsurge of interest rates and the stepped-up dialogue on the tax question had an unsettling effect on last week's stock market. Prices moved generally lower for the third week.

Much of the rise in interest rates is due directly to the fact that the federal government must borrow so heavily to finance its fiscal 1968 spending—a situation that many Administration critics maintain is getting out of control.

The Treasury announced plans to borrow $6.2 billion by selling $4 billion of tax-anticipation bills Wednesday plus $1.3 billion of other bills over the next 13 weeks in the regular sales of three-month and six-month bills and an additional $900 million of nine-month and one-year bills between September and May.

The prospect of all these bill sales made short-term interest rates early this week. Rates on three-month Treasury bills jumped from 3.46 per cent on Monday to 3.76 per cent two days later.

Another startling development during the week was the sale by the Illinois Bell Telephone Company of $125 million of triple-A bonds at the high borrowing cost of 6.043 per cent. This was the most expensive borrowing by a subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company since Nov. 12, 1921, when the Federal Reserve was fighting stiff inflationary pressures after World War I.

Business is emerging unscathed from its winter slowdown and is on the verge of a significant pick-up. Credit demands seem to be expanding excessively. Inflationary pressures are intensifying. Consumer prices rose sharply again last month (0.3 per cent) and wholesale prices are beginning to move upward, too.

Meanwhile federal spending is rising ominously and the government's deficit promises to be massive.

Under these circumstances, present economic policies are much too stimulative. It is paradoxical that government officials have been recommending a tax increase to reduce demand and narrow the deficit at the same time that a very stimulative monetary and fiscal policy remains in effect.

The principal support for a tax increase came this week from William McChesney Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

Martin called for "adequate, effective and—above all—prompt tax action that would whittle down the prospective deficit" in the government's budget for fiscal 1968. He indicated he would be prepared to support a tax request in excess of the proposed 6 per cent surcharge if congressional action on appropriations increased the revenue needs.

Ackley, referred to the "overwhelming conclusion" of serious students of the economy that a "strong revival of demand is on the way" and said that a tax increase would be needed to "safeguard healthy prosperity."

If fiscal action provides restraint in the Federal Reserve's expansionary monetary policy.

While sentiment for a tax increase is building up, there is considerable opposition to it.

Prof. Paul A. Samuelson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, warned Congress against rushing into a tax increase. While there are indications of a strong upturn in business activity later this year, he said, the upturn hasn't arrived yet. And, he added, "we still cannot see the whites of the eyes of the inflation enemy."

In his congressional testimony last week, Ackley said that the U.S. Gross National Product grew at an annual rate of "roughly 10 billion" in the second quarter that ended Friday. This was more than double the disappointing first-quarter gain of $4.4 billion, but was still somewhat below the $14 billion increase in the first three months of 1966.

Leonard H. Lempert of Statistical Indicator Associates, who keeps tab on the economic indicators, found a significant improvement last week in that four leaders are now trending upward, six downward and two level. Three months ago, only 1 of the indicators was pointed upward.

The four now moving higher were new orders for durable goods, housing permits, common stock prices and net business formations.

"With much of the May data now available for the leaders," Lempert said, "prospects are relatively high for an increase in the leading composite. We estimate a 2-point jump to 130 in May." His composite index of the leading indicators was running at 128.129 since last October after having hit 136 in May a year ago.

The most heartening statistic is the report by the F. W. Dodge Company that construction contract awards showed a big jump in May, rebounding to within 1 per cent of the high level reached a year ago before the industry's recession set in. The value of May's awards for future buildings was $5,094,827,000.

Earlier there were the encouraging reports of the 6.6 per cent upturn in durable orders last month and the rising trend of such important indicators as auto sales, general retail sales and personal income, as well as government spending at all levels.

NEW YORK—Speculative fireworks have been so loud of late that it is difficult to get a fix on the point of impact.

Trend & Value, a technical advisory service published by WFSM Financial Service Corporation says there is no question but that the American Stock Exchange is the base of speculative operations by and large. Here's T. & V.'s analysis of the matter:

"The point to realize is that it takes relatively little money to keep ASE issues flying and that therefore fireworks on the lit board is not necessarily a symptom of universal gambling fever or of a progressively worsening over-bought condition on the public stock market sector generally."

"A few statistics should make this perfectly clear. According to the latest available securities and Exchange Commission data, the 122.3 million shares that changed on the ASE in March had a total market value of $1.83 billion, or about $15 per share on average."

"By comparison, the 2,87.7 million shares turned over on the New York Stock Exchange in March had an aggregate value of $11.5 billion, or about $43 on average. In other words, it took only one-sixth the amount of money to trade nearly half as much stock on the curb as on the big board."

In a concluding remark Trend & Value said:

"As things are, the ASE fireworks reflect simply the impact made by the return flow—so far only partial—of speculative money, on a relative handful of low-priced stocks having a limited floating supply."

Brokerage houses were quick to add an amen to published reports that the government's slowdown in educational expenditures had hurt earnings prospects for the publishers.

Federal spending for books—they reportedly account for about 10 per cent of the total spent for education—have been disappointing to publishers.

Vietnam spending has put a crimp on the outlay for books and is expected to continue to do so. Therefore, profits for 1967—while expected to reach record levels—will not show gains of the magnitude of those recorded in 1966 over 1965.

Here are some latest estimates for 1967 per-share earnings for a number of publishers: Crowell Collier should earn $2.75 a share, R. R. Donnelley, $1.90, Esquire, $3.50, Ghr & Co. $1.50, Harcourt Brace, $3.10, McCall, $2.50, McGraw Hill, $1.50, Prentice Hall, $2.50, Scott Foresman, $1.50, and Times Mirror, $2.10.

Trading in Gulf American Land Corporation, which was halted by the American Stock Exchange on Wednesday, was resumed Friday. The opening sale was a block of 14,100 shares at $9.75 a share, down $2 from Tuesday's closing price. The stock finished at 9, down 2 1/4.

The Florida Ins Allment Land sales board said it will be sometime next month before the board meets again and reviews an investigation into sales techniques of the company.

Chairman Gerald Gould and Gulf American officials have repeatedly said no definite action has been taken on the investigation and that the company is in no danger of discontinuing operation.

Beverage Rained Out, Meet Ewing Tomorrow

Due to an all-day rain in the Scranton area, the Warren Beverage Baseball Club's opening game in the 1967 Pennsylvania's NBC Tournament at Dunmore was postponed yesterday. The Beveragemen had been slated to open defense of their title at 8 p.m. last night.

No tourney games are scheduled today because of conflict in the scheduling of the field. The locals will play their first game at 11 a.m. tomorrow against a tough Ewing club. If they win, their next game would be tomorrow evening, with a victory in that one shooting Beverage into the finals.

There is a possibility that Beverage would host the Championship series here later in the week.

STOPS RAMOS IN FOURTH

Hard Training Pays Dividends to Ortiz

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — World lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz doesn't have anything against fighting and winning. He just doesn't like training.

"If training wasn't so hard, I would fight every day," Ortiz said after retaining his title by scoring a technical knockout over Sugar Ramos in the fourth round at Bithorn Stadium Saturday night.

And train hard he did. Ortiz was in the best shape of his life for the Ramos match. He had promised his Puerto Rican fans to end it all before the fifth round, and he did.

"He can keep the title for as long as he wants," commented one fan after the match. "I saw the two Laguna fights, and I also was in Mexico for the riotous Ramos affair last October, but I had never seen him so sharp as tonight."

Ortiz never missed one. Every time he used his right hook, he caught Ramos in the head.

In the second round he landed a terrific right to the head sending Ramos reeling backward. Then in the third he landed another one to the same spot, and Ramos looked like a ballet dancer dangling on one foot.

In the fourth, just before referee Zack Clayton decided that the former featherweight king had had enough, Ortiz caught Ramos with another vicious right and this time the Cuban landed against the ropes but did not go down.

Ortiz continued his attack and Ramos went down on his hands and one knee. After waiting for the mandatory eight count in a neutral corner, the Puerto Rican again hit Ramos at will, and when Clayton put an end to the fight at 1:18 of the fourth round, it was a one-sided affair. Ramos and his trainer, though, complained after the match and argued that it should not have been stopped.

"The referee should not have stopped it," said trainer Pancho Rosales. "My boy could have gone on."

The same thing happened in Mexico when referee Billy Conn stopped the match in the fifth round because of a badly cut left eye. A riot ensued. A riot almost developed Saturday night, too, but it did not come out to do with Ramos or Ortiz.

Blackmer, Dill Win At Erie

Youngville's Ron Blackmer made a sweep of area racing events in the Sportsman Club by taking the feature event at Erie Speedway last night. Tom Dill of Erie posted a victory in the 50-lap main event for New Cars.

Blackmer, who also won at Stateville on Saturday night, took the lead midway through the final event for the older cars and held on to win going away. Front-running Dick Craig of Guy Mills blew a tire on the 17-lap of the 25-lap feature and had to retire.

In the late model feature, Dill got off to a flying start and led all the way. Johnny Whitehead of North Clay, N.Y., finished second to Dill and Erie's Dick Litz took third. Squirt Johns of Brockway had been running third, but his auto over-heated and he had to settle for fourth place.

Complete results were as follows:

SPORTSMEN

Semi-finals—Bruce Smith, Lakewood, N.Y., and Ron Blackmer, Erie.

Feature—1. Ron Blackmer, 2. Lyle Brown, Jamestown, N.Y., 3. Jim Ruhlman, Youngville, 4. Chuck Vorse, Erie.

Heat winners—Jerry Curtis, Coneaut, Ohio; Dick Litz, Bob by Schnarrs, Busti, N.Y.

Semi-finals—Tom Dill and Squirt Johns.

Feature—1. Tom Dill, 2. Johnny Whitehead, 3. Dick Litz, 4. Squirt Johns.

CHICAGO (AP) — The amazing Chicago Cubs rode the three-hit pitching of Ferguson Jenkins into first place in the National League yesterday with a 4-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

A standing room only crowd of 40,464, largest in years to watch a baseball game in Wrigley Field, saw Jenkins also slam a double and a triple to ease the way to his 11th victory against five losses.

The triumph was the sixth straight for the Cubs and their 13th in the last 14 games. It moved them into a first place tie with St. Louis which split a doubleheader at New York.

It was the first time since June 7, 1963, the Cubs were in first place. They finished last in 1966 and have not finished in the first division since 1946.

The first hit off Jenkins, an All-Star selection, was Vada Pinson's sixth home run leading off the fourth inning. Art Shamsky followed with a single, and Lee May got the other hit in the eighth.

Randy Hundley doubled in one Chicago run in the second, and hits by Ron Santo, Lee Thomas and Al Spangler produced two more in the fourth before Jenkins' run scoring triple.

The Cardinals had temporarily fallen to second place, one half game behind Chicago, after dropping the first game to the Mets, 5-4.

St. Louis bunched four extra base hits in the second inning against New York starter Jack Lamabe for three quick runs in the nightcap. Carlton made them stand up, striking out six for his sixth victory.

Orlando Cepeda opened the second with a double and rode home on Dave Ricketts' two-bagger, scoring Ricketts, and Dal Maxvill's sacrifice fly brought Javier across. Carlton doubled but Lou Brock struck out, ending the inning.

But Harrelson dashed home with the winning run in the ninth inning of the first game on Nelson's Briles' wild pitch.

Harrelson had singled with one out and then stole second and reached third on catcher John Romano's throwing error.

Ken Boyer doubled home one Met run and then homered in the eighth inning, tying the game at 4-4. Ed Kranepool also homered for New York.

Hal Renitt, acquired Friday from the New York Yankees, won his second straight in relief. Renitt struck out Mike Shannon, the only batter he faced, ending a two-out, two out threat in the top of the ninth.

Shannon drove in three runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly.

Jim Hart knocked in three runs for the Giants with two doubles, a single and a sacrifice fly and finished the four-game series with 12 RBI.

Both blows came off White Sox starter Gary Peters, 10-4, who gave up only one other hit and struck out 11 in the seven innings he worked.

Sparma, 9-1, walked two and struck out four in posting his third shutout of the season.

Phil's Giants PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Johnny Callison's two-out double climaxed a three-run ninth inning that lifted Philadelphia to an 8-7 victory over San Francisco yesterday.

The Giants had scored five unearned runs on five Philie errors and held a 7-2 lead after 7½ innings. But Philadelphia knocked out Ray Sadecki in a three-run eighth and then pushed three more across in the ninth.

Tony Taylor opened the winning rally with a single against reliever Lindy McDaniel. A pinch single by Doug Clemens and Rich Allen's hit produced one run. After McDaniel retired Don Lock and Gene Oliver, Callison doubled off the right field wall.

Allen's double and singles by Oliver, Callison and pinch hitter Tony Gonzalez had produced three runs in the eighth for Philadelphia.

Jim Hart knocked in three runs for the Giants with two doubles, a single and a sacrifice fly and finished the four-game series with 12 RBI.

McDowell permitted only two more hits, but lost his seventh game against four victories.

Dillman, a 22-year-old right-hander, retired the first 10 hitters he faced before Max Alvis doubled. Leon Wagner walked, but Dillman got Rocky Colavito to hit into a double play.

Dillman, 5-3 did not permit another runner past first base. Rain started falling in the Baltimore sixth and play was halted with two out in the Cleveland seventh. The game was called after a one hour and five-minute wait.

Houston (AP) — Rookie Ron Davis beat out a bunt with two out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning, scoring Jim Wynn with the winning run as the Houston Astros beat the Cincinnati Reds, 4-3, in the 10th inning.

Wynn, 2-0, walked two and struck out four in posting his third shutout of the season.

Both blows came off White Sox starter Gary Peters, 10-4, who gave up only one other hit and struck out 11 in the seven innings he worked.

Sparma, 9-1, walked two and struck out four in posting his third shutout of the season.

Wynn, 2-0, walked two and struck out four in posting his third shutout of the season.

Both blows came off White Sox starter Gary Peters, 10-4, who gave up only one other hit and struck out 11 in the seven innings he worked.

Sparma, 9-1, walked two and struck out four in posting his third shutout of the season.

Phil's Giants PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Johnny Callison's two-out double climaxed a three-run ninth inning that lifted Philadelphia to an 8-7 victory over San Francisco yesterday.

The Giants had scored five unearned runs on five Philie errors and held a 7-2 lead after 7½ innings. But Philadelphia knocked out Ray Sadecki in a three-run eighth and then pushed three more across in the ninth.

Tony Taylor opened the winning rally with a single against reliever Lindy McDaniel. A pinch single by Doug Clemens and Rich Allen's hit produced one run. After McDaniel retired Don Lock and Gene Oliver, Callison doubled off the right field wall.

Allen's double and singles by Oliver, Callison and pinch hitter Tony Gonzalez had produced three runs in the eighth for Philadelphia.

Jim Hart knocked in three runs for the Giants with two doubles, a single and a sacrifice fly and finished the four-game series with 12 RBI.

McDowell permitted only two more hits, but lost his seventh game against four victories.

Dillman, a 22-year-old right-hander, retired the first 10 hitters he faced before Max Alvis doubled. Leon Wagner walked, but Dillman got Rocky Colavito to hit into a double play.

Dillman, 5-3 did not permit another runner past first base. Rain started falling in the Baltimore sixth and play was halted with two out in the Cleveland seventh. The game was called after a one hour and five-minute wait.

Houston (AP) — Rookie Ron Davis beat out a bunt with two out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning, scoring Jim Wynn with the winning run as the Houston Astros beat the Cincinnati Reds, 4-3, in the 10th inning.

Paris Miss Fades, But Takes Open

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Sports Writer
HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Amateur Catherine La Coste, France's sensational "Crocodile Kid," stood off the rain, pressure and a rash of five straight bogeys and rewrote the record book in winning the 22nd Women's National Open Golf Championship yesterday. It will go down as the "blow-up" Open.

Dissipating a lead that had stretched to seven strokes on the final round, the bouncy mandemotelle from Paris sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the 71st hole and parred the 72nd for a 79 and a winning score of 294.

She won by two strokes over little Susie Maxwell and gangling Beth Stone, a pair of Oklahomans. Each had a final round of 74.

Miss Lacoste, at 22 years and five days, becomes the youngest player ever to win this blue-ribbon golf event of American women, the first amateur and the first foreigner to do it.

"It's a nice birthday present for Papa," Miss Lacoste said shortly after sinking a putt of less than a foot for the championship.

This is the 63rd birthday of her father, Rene Lacoste of Davis Cup tennis fame in the 1920's. Rene Lacoste was one of the Four Musketeers who dominated the Davis Cup during the Bill Tilden era. He also won two Wimbledon and two United States championships.

Lacoste, now a wealthy aeronautics manufacturer, was known as the Crocodile Man during his tennis-playing days.

Miss Lacoste was bred for the role of a champion. Her mother, the former Simone de La Chaine, won the British Ladies golf title 40 years ago and captured numerous French titles.

Seven strokes ahead of the field after the first hole of the final round, the stocky, 140-pound Miss Lacoste had five straight bogies starting at the 10th hole and saw her advantage cut to a single stroke.

The veteran Louise Suggs, a former champion, with a magnificent rally, was only one shot away from the lead until she hit her third shot into an embankment on the 16th and flew her fourth over the green, winding up with a double bogey, seven.

Miss Suggs, with a final round 73, finished in a tie for fourth place with Mrs. Linda Lindstrom, a 29-year-old mother of two who had a closing 76, and Sandra Haynie, the vestpocket Texan who rallied with an even par 73.

Miss Stone, who played so poorly on the tour last year and at the start of this year that she had to sell her automobile, was within one shot of first place going to the final two holes. She played out with two dramatic pars, sinking a six-foot putt on the 17th and coming off an embankment on the par 3 final hole.

However, the plucky Miss Lacoste knocked in her birdie putt at the next-to-last hole to relieve the pressure and played the 72nd over the water like a true champion.

As the first amateur champion in this tournament dating back to 1946, Miss Lacoste wins a gold medal. First and second money was divided between Miss Maxwell and Miss Stone, who received $3,600 each. Mrs. Lindstrom and the Misses Suggs and Haynie each collected $1,035.

Australian Margie Masters, who went into the last round as Miss Lacoste's closest pursuer, five strokes behind, blew to an 80 on the final 18 and finished seventh at an even 300. Miss Masters' miseries began early when she hit her second into a trap and three-putted for a double-bogey six at the first hole.

Miss Lacoste, who was 22 last Tuesday, is more than a year younger than Mickey Wright was in winning the first of her four Opens in 1958. She was 23 years, four months old.

Miss Wright played three rounds in 227, 12 shots off the pace, and then withdrew because of the death of her brother.

The final round was started under menacing skies, played largely in a drizzling rain which at one time reached a heavy downpour and finished in bright sunshine.

The rain had stopped before Miss Lacoste ran into her string of bogeys.

She appeared to be upset and near a possible blow-up until she put her tee shot on the green on the short 15th and got down comfortably in par.

SHEER SUICIDE, SHEARER !!

Jamestown's Freddy Knapp (99) finds the box closing in on him during the new car feature at Stateline Speedway Saturday night. Kenny Shearer (77) lost control of his car near the end of the 25-lap finale, spinning out in front of Knapp, who was forced to take evasive action, nearly becoming involved with Sammy LaMancuso

Stateline Features 'Cake' For Blackmer And Knapp

BUSTI, N.Y. — The feature races for the sportsmen and late model divisions at Stateline Speedway followed the same pattern Saturday night. Ron Blackmer of Youngsville forged an early lead in the sportsmen race and was never threatened. In the late model feature, Fred Knapp, Jamestown, N.Y., also took the lead in the early stages of the race and was never in danger of losing it.

It was no-hum in the late models as the Chevies dominated the new car division. The only major threat was Jim Scott, Garland, behind the wheel of a three-year old Ford. Scott won the first car heat and placed second to Knapp in the finale.

The Sportsmen division at Stateline is rapidly gaining respectability with a number of cars and drivers showing a great deal of skill both in construction and driving ability, respectively. The top five finishers in the 25-lap feature have all demonstrated championship form.

Following Blackmer across the finish line were Skip Furlow, Panama, N.Y., winner of the recent 150-lap segment race, Lyle Brown, Jamestown, N.Y., Stan Stevens, Panama, N.Y., and Jim Ruhlman, Youngsville. (Would you believe they all drive cars powered by six-cylinder Chevrolet engines?)

The late model situation is relatively unchanged, with any one of a dozen drivers capable of alternating positions in victory lane, depending on the breaks during a given race.

Following Knapp and Scott past the checkered flag were three other '67 Chevies driven by Ron Blackmer of Youngsville, Dick Litz of Erie and Squirt Johns of Brockway in that order.

In addition to the pre-holiday

Busti Track Hosts '4th' Show Tonite

BUSTI, N.Y. — Stateline Speedway will celebrate the upcoming holiday in advance tonight as it presents its "Firecracker 50" New Stock Car race and fireworks display.

Over 40 of the area's top drivers will be behind the wheel of the fastest 1964-67 New Stock Cars as Stateline presents its second of the long distance races. The 50 lap event carries a guaranteed $3000 purse and a top prize money of close to $500.

Current point leader Squirt Johns will have his hands full keeping his position as he receives challenges from Chevrolet drivers Fred Knapp, Ronnie Blackmer, Marty Rater and Dick Litz.

A full complement of Sportsmen races will also be presented in conjunction with the pre-holiday celebration. Twelve events in all are scheduled with the "Firecracker 50" and a 25 lap feature for Sportsmen highlighting the evening.

The largest display of fireworks ever presented in the area will also be on tap as Stateline's one-third mile clay track is lit by aerial sunbursts and ground displays.

Racing begins at the Busti track, located seven miles south of Jamestown, at 8:30 p.m. EDT.

crowd of approximately 3500 paid admissions, the management of Stateline Speedway paid host to nearly 600 Hot Stovers from the Upper Allegheny Mountain League. The twelve event program was completed in the shortest time to date this year, to let the youngsters get home without undue delay.

Sportsmen heat race winners were: Lee Luce, Falconer, N.Y.; Don Baumgartner, Scandia and Garry Hazzard, Busti.

In the semifinals, the checkered flag carriers were Bud Reynolds of Warren and Lyle Brown Jamestown, N.Y.

Late-model heat races were won by Paul Wilson, '67 Chevrolet, Jamestown, N.Y.; Dick Litz, '67 Chevrolet, Erie, and Jim Scott, '64 Ford, Youngsville. In the semis it was Ken Shearer, '64 Chevrolet, Jamestown, N.Y. and Bob Schnars, '67 Chevrolet, Busti, N.Y.

Jack Brabham Takes Prix, Hulme Second

LE MANS, France (AP) — Australian Jack Brabham won the Grand Prix of France yesterday in the steady, precise form that won him the world driving championship last year.

Driving a formula one Repco-Brabham, a car he built, Brabham took over the lead for good midway in the race when Lotus drivers Graham Hill and Jim Clark were forced out with mechanical trouble.

Second across the finish line at the 2.75-mile Bugatti circuit was teammate Denis Hulme of New Zealand.

Jackie Stewart of Scotland in a BRM was third, a lap back in the 80-lap 219.5-mile race on a dry track in warm, overcast weather.

The only members of the 15 starters who were still on the track and moving at the end were fourth-place Joseph Siffert of Switzerland in a Cooper-Maserati, three laps back, and Mexico's Pedro Rodriguez in a Cooper-Maserati who trailed by 12 laps in sixth place.

Fifth place went to Brian Chris Irwin whose smoking BRM slowed to a standstill on the last lap. Seventh place went to Frenchman Guy Ligier, whose Cooper-Maserati went out with mechanical trouble but nevertheless completed enough laps to qualify for the official standings.

Brabham and Hulme, who

Starting Field For 'Cracker 500 Announced

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — David Pearson of Spartansburg, S.C., averaged 179.061 miles per hour yesterday for the day's fastest time in qualifying runs for the Fourth of July Firecracker 400.

Driving a 1967 Ford, Pearson qualified for the No. 10 position in the $65,000 race.

Dick Hutcherson of Camden, S.C., driving a 1967 Ford, took the No. 7 spot with a speed of 178.323 m.p.h.

Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., in a 1967 Ford, was next at 177.637 m.p.h.

Lee Roy Yarbrough, Columbia, S.C., driving a 1967 Mercury Cyclone, averaged 177.357 m.p.h.

Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala., was next in a 1967 Dodge at 175.541 m.p.h.

James Hylton, Inman, S.C., in a 1965 Dodge, averaged 173.126 m.p.h.

Pole position in the race went to Darel Dierenger of Charlotte, N.C., with an average of 179.802 m.p.h. Saturday in a 1967 Ford.

Due to the holiday, all matches in the Industrial Golf League at Jackson Valley Country Club must be played today or this evening. The change is by order of loop President John Smith.

JVCC Open Still Accepting Entries

Entries are still being accepted for Saturday's Fourth Annual Jackson Valley Country Club Open Golf Tournament.

The tourney is open to all golfers with a certified handicap. Area golfers interested in entering are urged to call or contact the JVCC Pro Shop at 489-7803. Desired tee-times, where possible, will be honored.

Need Caddies

Caddies are still urgently needed at Wednesday's Shrine Golf Tournament at JVCC, according to tourney chairman Paul Yagge. All boys interested in working are guaranteed work and should contact the club's pro shop at 489-7803. Caddies are requested to report at noon on the day of the tourney.

Birdie Beats Ace?

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A hardie beat a hole-in-one Monday at the Forest Hill Country Club.

Mike O'Hara's No. 6 iron shot fell two feet from the hole and he sank the putt for a birdie two on the par three, 160-yard 16th hole.

Tom McGowan, who was playing with O'Hara, also used a No. 6 iron and put his tee shot in the cup. However, he scored a par three because he had taken a two stroke penalty when his first shot went out of bounds.

Reid, who had a final round 71, Nicklaus with 69 and 47, year-old Julius Boros, who had a 68, tied for third at 280.

PGA champ Al Geiberger was alone at 281, after a 71, while Arnold Palmer, who took the first straight 70, Gene Littler, 71 and Tommy Aaron, 70, were bunched at 282.

The final threesome was delayed in teeing off for about an hour by a torrential rainstorm.

Wall, playing it cagey, parred the first three holes, then dropped in a four-foot birdie putt on No. 4. He got another bird on the seventh with a 10-footer, but had bogeys on Nos. 5 and 9, each after putting an approach into a trap.

He matched a four-foot birdie putt on No. 10 with a bogey on 12, when he missed the green, and appeared to be in good shape when Nicklaus and Reid blew themselves out of contention on 17.

Casper, two-time U.S. Open champ, was making an almost unnoticed move.

He had his troubles with a one-over par 36 going out, scrambling to two birds and three bogeys.

It wasn't until the final holes that he started moving. He rammed in a 25-footer on No. 12 to go four under for the tourney, three strokes back of Wall. He made it two with an eight-foot birdie putt on No. 17 and made up the two strokes on the final hole.

Wall, bitterly disappointed, quickly ran through his card in the press tent, duled his head and got away.

The elated Casper said "I had

Wall Blows Putt, Casper Cops Canadian Open Tie

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
MONTREAL (AP) — Billy Casper, flashing from back in the pack as he did in the U.S. Open a year ago, rammed in a 10-foot birdie putt on the final hole and tied veteran Art Wall for the Canadian Open Golf Championship yesterday, forcing an 18 hole playoff today.

Casper, who made up seven strokes with nine holes to play against Arnold Palmer in the 1966 Open, was almost unnoticed as first Jack Nicklaus and then young Steve Reid made runs at the greying, bespectacled Wall, who led after the second and third round. Casper finished with a two-under-par 69 on the rain-drenched 6,500-yard, par 71 Montreal Municipal course and a 72-hole total of 279.

Wall, a former Masters champ, finally wilted under the pressure on the final hole, taking a bogey for a final round 72 and 279.

First Nicklaus, the chubby U.S. open champ, and then Reid made moves at the 44-year-old Wall, moving to within one stroke of him at one time or another, but each bid failed with a bogey on the bumpy 17th green.

Then the drama hit a high point on the 18th as Casper and Wall, playing in the final threesome, reached the green of the par 5 hole in three.

Wall, who had a two-stroke lead going into the final round, was away. He carefully studied a 20-foot putt, and ran it about five feet past the hole.

Then Casper surveyed the situation, stepped to the ball, then stepped back for another look. He ran in his 10-footer, and dropped to his knees, raising his hands in exultation.

And then it was squarely up to Wall. His five-foot try for a par that would have clinched the $30,000 first prize, broke about two inches from the cup. His shoulders slumped, he tapped it in for a bogey that forced the playoff.

Reid, who had a final round 71, Nicklaus with 69 and 47, year-old Julius Boros, who had a 68, tied for third at 280.

The elated Casper said "I had two things going for me on No. 18, after Art missed that putt.

"I knew I could make it and put the pressure on him. That's just the way it work."

They will play off for the title — the first in this tournament since 1956, when Doug Sanders, then an amateur, beat Dow Finsterwald — and the $30,000 top prize starting at 2:15 p.m. EDT today, second place money is worth $8,500.

The playoff will be televised nationally in both the United States and Canada. CBS-TV will televise the windup from 5:6 p.m., EDT, CBS-TV from 4:30-6 p.m. EDT.

Middle East Skirmish Erupts Around Canal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Israel and Egypt reported fresh outbreaks of fighting along the Suez Canal for the second straight day yesterday but the breaches in the ceasefire did not appear to threaten a major revival of the six-day Middle East war which ended June 10 with spectacular Israeli victories.

Israel claimed the Egyptians opened fire with machine guns and mortars from the west bank of the canal into Israeli positions near El Qantara, but military spokesmen in Tel Aviv said that in each case Israeli counter-attacks silenced the Egyptian gunners. El Qantara is about 25 miles from the northern entrance of the canal.

Radio Cairo, on the other hand, said Egyptian forces turned back an Israeli attack east of the canal and destroyed some Israeli tanks.

The Egyptians contended the Israelis were seeking to move on Port Fuad, which is opposite Port Said on the western side of the Mediterranean entrance to the canal. At the time of the ceasefire, the Egyptians had a force in Port Fuad.

The Egyptian government played down reports of the clashes. Its communiqués were brief and long delayed. The Israelis reported the clashes soon after they occurred, in short announcements.

Both sides protested to U.N.

Secretary-General U. Thant. Neither asked for a Security Council meeting or any other U.N. action. Each accused the other of violating the June 10 ceasefire. The U.N. General Assembly resumes sessions Monday to consider a number of resolutions on the Middle East crisis.

There were discrepancies in the Egyptian and Israeli reports. Israel charged that an Egyptian force crossed the Suez Canal in company strength Saturday night at Ras El'ish, about 10 miles south of Port Fuad, and penetrated about nine miles into the Sinai Peninsula before being driven back across the canal.

Egypt charged Israeli forces opened fire on Ras El'ish on Saturday night. Twelve hours later, Cairo radio reported the Israeli attack repulsed and three Israeli tanks and three armored cars destroyed.

Military experts in Beirut, Lebanon, expressed doubt Egypt's shattered army and air force are in any condition to launch a major offensive even with the new MIG jet fighters and military equipment the Soviet Union has been reported pouring into Egypt since the ceasefire.

The Israelis are not expected to launch a major offensive either, for political reasons and because their lines already are overextended.

Israeli military men interpreted a renewal of fighting as an attempt by President Gamal Abdel Nasser to rally his shattered army against the threat of an Israeli invasion. The Israeli newspaper Maariv quoted political informants in Jerusalem as saying the Egyptian moves might be aimed at influencing the U.N. General Assembly to vote for the withdrawal of Israeli forces.

Cairo radio gave no explanation for the renewed fighting. It carried no commentaries, refrained from any fiery calls to arms and restricted its reports to three brief communiqués.

The first communique was broadcast two hours after the fighting started Saturday. The second, announcing the end of Saturday night's clash, came 12 hours later.

Cairo newspapers yesterday morning published the first one-paragraph communique without comment.

Off-Campus Study Is Proposed

HARRISBURG (AP) — A $100,000 private study of Pennsylvania's off-campus college and university centers and community colleges has been approved by the State Board of Education.

The nine-month study is to be conducted by Heald, Hobson and Associates of New York, an educational research firm. Board Chairman Otis McCreery announced this weekend.

The survey will examine: — The extent to which off-campus centers adequately serve community needs compared to parent institution needs.

— The cost of operating off-campus centers.

— The impact of off-campus centers on long-range plans for community colleges outlined in the state's Master Plan for Higher Education.

— Resources available to students at off-campus centers.

Reagan Makes Gains at Meet

By WALTER R. MEARS
ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — President Johnson and Republican Ronald Reagan appeared yesterday to be the major political beneficiaries of a week's talks among governors looking toward the 1968 campaign for the White House.

Democrats fashioned a Johnson consensus in St. Louis, rescinding their earlier criticism of the administration, and forecast re-election for the President.

Republicans who conferred at Jackson, Wyo., agreed only that the party should promote a wide-open campaign for the 1968 nomination.

But even a liberal-minded critic such as Oregon Gov. Tom McCall conceded that Reagan's rating as a potential presidential nominee was on the rise.

At the same time, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and his allies, seeking to promote the presidential cause of Michigan's Gov. George W. Romney, said they were making progress in private talks with GOP governors.

Marines, Regulars In Battle

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines clashed with well-equipped North Vietnamese army regulars yesterday in a firefight just south of the demilitarized zone dividing Vietnam. The action continued past nightfall.

Before it began, about 100 North Vietnamese troops wearing steel helmets and flak jackets were spotted moving across an open area near Con Thien, the Marine outpost only 1,400 yards south of the demilitarized zone.

AP correspondent Robert D. Oman reported that elements of the 9th Marines based at Con Thien moved out to intercept the North Vietnamese and the fighting started. There were no details on the action or casualties on either side.

It was believed to be the first time that the enemy in South Vietnam was reported to be equipped with flak jackets, the chest protectors designed to ward off shrapnel or shell fragments.

Earlier, the Marine outpost at Con Thien had received 38 rounds of 82mm artillery fire, resulting in five Marines wounded. Another Marine unit based 1.2 miles northeast of Con Thien was hit about the same time with 42 rounds from 82mm mortars. Marine spokesmen said there were no U.S. casualties from that barrage.

No major fighting was reported elsewhere in South Vietnam, but a Navy rescueman on his last combat mission dropped from a helicopter into a North Vietnamese jungle under enemy fire Sunday and saved a downed Air Force pilot who was unconscious and had a broken leg.

The rescue south of Vinh, about 150 miles above the demilitarized zone and 25 miles from the sea, underscored the renewed intensity of the air war on the north, where U.S. pilots dodged guided missiles and blistering antiaircraft fire Saturday in 145 missions—many at rail lines running between the Hanoi-Haiphong complex and Red China.

The plane downed near Vinh was believed to be an Air Force F105 Thunderchief jet. It was the 593rd plane announced by the U.S. Command as having been lost in the air war that began more than two years ago. U.S. headquarters made no mention of losses over the north in Saturday's raids although Hanoi radio claimed two U.S. planes were downed.

On the same day three U.S. helicopters were shot down by Communist ground fire in South Vietnam.

Rockefeller said Reagan was undercutting the undeclared campaign for former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who had appeared the logical heir to conservative Republican backing.

The 50 state governorships are divided equally between Republicans and Democrats. And the men who hold those offices could be a crucial force in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Johnson flew to St. Louis from the LBJ Ranch in Texas late Saturday to accept personally the acclaim of his party's governors.

He spent an hour and 40 minutes with them, talked about foreign affairs and domestic programs, listened to their outline of the 1968 Democratic outlook, and reported: "What they said was music to my ears."

Johnson said the governors' words of support would improve his political standing.

Reagan, California's first-term governor, was not on hand for the GOP conference at Jackson, but talk of his potential candidacy lingered there.

Romney was another absentee. Rockefeller said he had indications of Romney support which will surface publicly later.

In the end, the 21 GOP governors adopted a resolution urging that state delegations be sent to the Republican National Convention tree of instructions that would bind them to any candidate. That gesture is not likely to have much impact on the race for the nomination.

Democratic governors dropped the complaints they had posted at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., seven months earlier, and joined in near-unanimous praise of Johnson.

Some of the same governors who had blamed the administration for party election setbacks joined in a statement of accord expressing pride in Johnson's attainments and confidence that the American people "want this progress to continue."

Individually, on a one-critical Democratic governors declared total support for a Johnson ticket in 1968.

"I'm 100 per cent behind the Democratic ticket in Missouri and that will include the President," said Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

"He will be the strongest candidate in America next year," added Gov. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa.

There was dissent from the Deep South. Louisiana Gov. John J. McKeithen said he was not ready to commit himself to any presidential candidate.

Gov. Lester G. Maddox of Georgia said he may not back Johnson—but won't bolt the party to support anyone else, either.

That denies former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace one of his potential allies for a Southern-based, third-party campaign in 1968.

Even in St. Louis, there was talk of Republican Reagan.

Maddox said Reagan would be the strongest GOP challenger in the South. "Right now, there's no doubt in my mind but that he will be the nominee," said Maddox.

Instigators Competing In National

The Instigators, a local barbershop quartet, are competing in the 29th annual international competition of barbershop quartets in Los Angeles, Calif., this week.

The Instigators qualified for the international competition by winning first place in the Seneca District regional competition held at Syracuse, N.Y.

This achievement placed the Warren group among the top 45 quartets in SPEBSQSA (the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America). There are over 700 quartets in the society.

Groups from the United States and Canada are included in the event, which will be held at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles. The top 45 quartets will take part in the program.

Members of The Instigators are Dave Reynolds, lead singer and contact man of the group; Bill Crozier, bass; Paul Mahan, tenor; and Steve Cruickshank, baritone. The men, accompanied by their wives, will fly to Los Angeles. To raise money for expenses, the group sponsored a swiss steak supper and rummage sale.

Revenues Announced By Shafer

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania realized $1,423,850,000 in general fund revenue in fiscal 1966-67 which ended yesterday, Gov. Shafer's office has announced.

This is $4.7 million more than he estimated June 1 when he delivered his revenue message to the legislature. The revenue figure for the previous fiscal year was $1,348,968,673.

When Shafer delivered his budget message in April, he predicted the state general fund income would be $1,437,100,000 but he revised this figure downward to $1,419 billion in his revenue message two months later.

The governor said in his weekend statement that the official revenue figure for the just-ended fiscal year means that his revenue estimates for that period were "extremely accurate."

Shafer's proposed $1,791 billion budget for this fiscal year is based in large part on his revenue estimates for the past and present fiscal years.

House Minority Leader Herbert Fineman was asked to comment on Shafer's weekend revenue announcement.

"We're still checking the 1966-67 revenue returns and will continue to do so until we are completely sure that all revenue has been reported," Fineman, D-Philadelphia said.

Shafer contended in his announcement that "the accuracy of these estimates proves once and for all that we have not been under-estimating revenues as the House minority leader has consistently and irresponsibly charged."

House Democrats have refused to support the governor's $267 million tax program because of their contention that most of the proposed new revenues is not needed.

Shafer said final figures on the amount of unexpended appropriations or lapses were not available, but he stood by his revised estimate of $42 million. Democrats argued the lapses should total $82 million.

If Shafer is correct, the total surplus for the 1966-67 fiscal year would be $65.7 million. The administration was counting on a surplus of $61 million.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—The showboat Majestic won't travel the Ohio and Mississippi rivers this summer with plays performed by Indiana University drama students.

After seven seasons of use, the vessel's hull was found to have deteriorated and be unsafe for audiences. The school is searching for another boat that can be gotten in shape for a floating tour in 1968.

WARREN TIMES-MIRROR AND OBSERVER

WARREN, PA., MONDAY, JULY 3, 1967

ADMINISTRATION COST $21,099

Records Show ASCS Gave County $164,259

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) of the United States Department of Agriculture spent $164,259 on programs in Warren County during the 1966 "fiscal year period" and the 1966 "final year period," according to the Pennsylvania ASCS 1966 annual report. Part of this sum was $21,099 spent on administration of the programs.

ASCS programs in the county were in five main categories. These, and the amount spent in each category, are as follows: Agricultural conservation, $49,200; wheat and feed grain production adjustment, $51,366; conservation reserve, $36,243; cropland adjustment, $5,349; and National Wool Act, $1,002. Disbursements for the agricultural conservation program were listed as being for the 1966 "fiscal year period." Disbursements for program administration were listed as being for the 1966 "fiscal year period."

The report says, "The 1964 and previous reports were on a calendar year basis. The 1965 report contained practices performed in 1965 before June 30. This 1966 report will be identical to the 1965 report on agricultural conservation program practice data. The 1967 will then be the first report on a fiscal year basis or July 1, 1966 through June 30, 1967."

Warren County has evidently not taken part in "income-producing recreation projects" that the report said were authorized for Warren county and eight other counties under the "1963 cropland and conversion program." Six of the authorized counties have undertaken recreation projects such as preparing fee fishing sites, camp sites, trailer parks, golf courses and boating areas. Neither Warren County nor Mercer County nor Fulton County is mentioned in a listing of recreation projects. The six counties listed as having undertaken projects are Bradford, Wyoming, Bedford, Fayette, Somerset and Westmoreland.

The agricultural conservation program in the county includes a number of sub-programs. These, and the extent of ASCS participation, are as follows:

—Hay and pasture seedings: 141 farms; 1,708 acres; $28,292. Timber stand improvement: 10 farms; 192 acres. —Timber: trees planted; 10 farms, 192 acres, $704; timber stand improvement; 7 farms, 78 acres, $1,585. —Improving established cover: 90 farms, 1,277 acres, $14,503. —Stripcropping to prevent erosion: 10 farms, 192 acres, $704. —Permanent sod waterways: 1 farm, 3 acres, $91. —Cover on dams, waterways: 2 farms, 2 acres, $92. —Diversion terraces: 1 farm, 7 acres, $99. —Springs or seeps for livestock: 1 farm, $100. —Open drains: 4 farms, 35 acres, $306. —Underground drains: 11 farms, 77 acres, $2,723. —Temporary cover: 1 farm, 159 acres, $715.

The report gives the following data on the wheat diversion program for Warren County in 1966: "Allotment farms" numbered 179; "acres allotted," 748; "participating farms," 48; the "allotment on participating farms," 48; the "allotment on participating farms" was 318 acres; the "acreage planted" was 161. "Acres diverted" numbered 137; "diversion payments" totaled $2,148; "certification payments" totaled $3,393. Total payments were listed as $5,531.

There were 455 feed grain farms. The "corn base" was 4,092 acres. The "grain sorghum base" was 7 acres. The "barley base" was 52 acres.

"Planted acreage data on participating farms" in the 1966 feed grain program was given as 178 acres of corn, zero acres of grain sorghum, and 6 acres of barley.

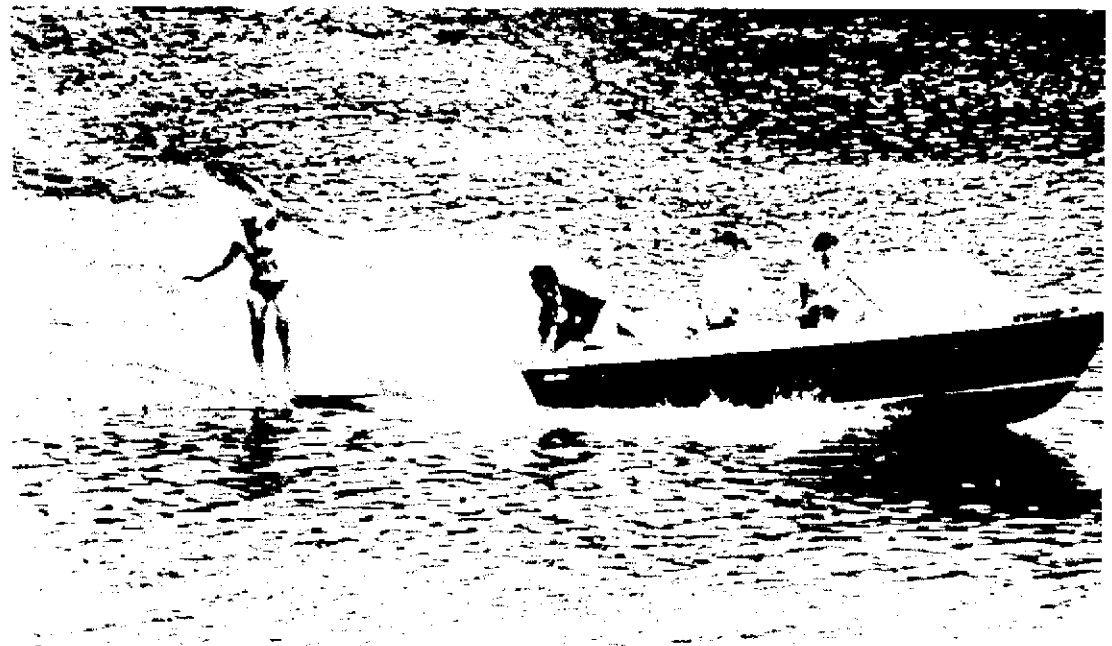

"Diversion acreage data on participating farms" in the 1966 feed grain program was given as follows: 172 participating farms; 1,247 diversion acres of corn earning payment; zero diversion acres of grain sorghum earning payment; 1 diversion acre of barley earning payment; total payments, $42,180.

Under "price support payments earned under the 1966 feed grain and wheat programs" were listed the following data: corn, 153 acres, grain sorghum, zero acres, barley, 5 acres, payments (predominantly corn), $3,655; wheat—average earning certificates 79; $3,383.

Under the conservation reserve program are listed these data: number of contracts 66, total number of acres under contract 2,595, annual payments earned in 1966 $36,243.

The cropland adjustment program was as follows: 17 agreements, 469 acres diverted, total payments $5,349.39. The cropland adjustment program total payments figure includes total payments of $651 under the "public access" section of the program. There were 13 public access agreements and 317 acres open to the public.

Tuition Up At JCC Next Fall

Officials at Jamestown Community College have announced a new tuition schedule for both resident and non-resident students effective September 1, 1967.

Dr. Albert W. Balsler, college president, noted that full time resident tuition will amount to $165 per semester or $330 per year. Non-resident tuition will be $330 per semester and $660 per year under the new schedule.

The new rate for part time students taking less than 12 credit hours calls for a fee of $11 per credit hour for residents, and $22 per credit hour for non-residents.

The tuition revisions pertain to both day and evening classes.

Dr. Balsler also noted that registration for evening classes in the fall will be held Saturday, September 16.

Clarion Archeology Team at Tidioute

Sixteen participants of the Fourth Annual Archaeological Field School at Clarion State College have begun to excavate the site of a prehistoric Indian village in the upper Allegheny valley.

The site is adjacent to Route 62 near the present town of Tidioute, an area rich in Indian lore.

Previous archaeological work in that portion of the valley was conducted during the past two years by student teams from Clarion and has resulted in the recovery of significant data. The 16 participants of the first session of the Field School represent fourteen academic institutions ranging from Colorado to New Jersey. Professor W. Bradford Waltman is in charge of the site as field archaeologist of the summer program.

A detailed evaluation of the site cannot be made at this time, the results of previous testing and of the initial phase of the excavation indicate the presence of an Indian village. "We should have a much better idea in a few days," said Dr. Gustav A. Konitzky, Professor of Anthropology at Clarion and Director of the Field School.

In order to give visitors a chance to see an archaeological team at work, the site will be open to visitors on Saturday, July 8, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Watch for Cycles

In Pennsylvania, the number of motorcycles registered increased from 36,794 in 1963 to 90,432 in 1966, an increase of 145 percent. Motorcycle deaths increased from 30 to 84 in the same period, or an increase of 180 percent. The Pennsylvania Bureau of Traffic Safety has asked all motorists to be aware of this new trend toward a greater number of motorcycles on the highway, especially during the heavily traveled July 4 weekend.

When I say whoa, he goes," Milton explained. "When I say go, he whoas. How in the name of Aunt Hildie's big oak tree am I going to pull a float with that sort of thing going on?"

I suggested that he say whoa when he wants the mule to go, and vice versa.

The blasted thing's too smart for that. I tried it. He goes along with it for about two minutes, then he just backs up. "I can't have that. Miss Warren County's float is right behind me and the Warren High band is in front of me. He'll foul them all up."

The Hooks Hollow float is a hayride wagon, naturally, so I asked Milton why he didn't just have a horse pull the thing. "Because the man who owns the wagon says the mule has to go with it, that's why."

Well, I left shortly after that, but I hear that Mappersnapper finally solved the problem. He's going to pull the wagon and let the mule drive.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold
♠AQ1043 ♠Q6 ♠A1093 ♠72
The bidding has proceeded
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Two spades. This is a minor suit, and the simple rebid of 2♠ is preferred to a 2♥ bid, which would be a strain, bidding at least 1000 points.

Q 2—Neither vulnerable as South you hold
♠75 ♠K9643 ♠KQ3 ♠872
The bidding has proceeded
North East South West
1 NT Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A—1♥ to trump. You must not bid here, hearts for that would be wrong to game. This hand is a trump suit, but with a five-card major and a worthless doubleton you choose to explore suit possibilities by instituting the two club inquiry. Since partner has bid spades, you are forced to return to no trump. He can still show hearts in the remote contingency that he has them, or proceed to three no trump if his opening was not a misnomer.

Q 3—Both vulnerable as South you hold
♠AQJ10 ♠865 ♠9 107 ♠A43
The bidding has proceeded
North East South West
5 ♠ Dble

What do you bid?
A—Pass. You have no reason to disturb partner's bid. It will be time enough to think of bidding spades if West takes the double cue to five hearts. In the meantime, your hand should make a perfectly suitable defender.

Q 4—East West vulnerable as South you hold
♠AQJ64 ♠A754 ♠J832
The bidding has proceeded
East South West North
♠ Dble 1 NT Dble

What do you bid now?
A—Two spades. Since your double was based somewhat on distribution rather than high card strength, your hand may prove a disappointment defensively.

Q 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold
♠742 ♠A10 ♠8763 ♠Q1094
The bidding has proceeded
South West North East
Pass 1 Dble Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Four diamonds. Partner has made a vulnerable take-out double and then bid voluntarily at the three level which marks him with a very good hand. You have more than he could have counted on, and consequently is worth a try for game. With but a single heart stopper, we would not recommend a bid of three no trump. A possibility, however, might be three hearts which could enable partner to bid no trump with some second air heart stopper.

Q 6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold
♠KQ3 ♠J5 ♠KJ1086 ♠K93
The bidding has proceeded
West North East South
1 NT Pass Pass

What do you bid?
A—Double. This is a trifle light for a double but East has confessed to a mediocre holding. If partner has more of the missing points, you can severely damage the one no trump contract. If he has to take the double, the consequences shouldn't be too dire.

Q 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold
♠A1 ♠Q13 ♠A98643 ♠J95
The bidding has proceeded
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Three diamonds. This is somewhat of an underbid but there is no other contract available. A leap to five diamonds may get you one too high if partner has a shaded third seat opening.

Q 8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold
♠K986 ♠J105 ♠652 ♠A54
The bidding has proceeded
North East South West
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Pass. Partner's three spade bid is an inquiry as to whether you have any surplus values. Actually, you have just about made the grade for free raise. Had your two spade bid come in the absence of the overcall then you would be justified in carrying on.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR MONDAY, JULY 3, 1967.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Start the new week with best intentions, and like endeavor. This day may present some challenges, but you can best them all. Look ahead!

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—A favorable Venus aspect encourages the artistic in everything; also favors domestic and romantic interests. Your personality should be sparkling.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Without being a clock-watcher, make sure that you ARE accomplishing at the speed required. But do not let quality suffer through the pace you or others set.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Good lunar influences should spur your ambition, stimulate your mind. Keep to your course, and avoid anxiety. There is no need for it.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Aspects give stimulus for expansion, advancement, the results of which may not show until later, however. View the sunny side of whatever your tasks.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—You, too, come in for a new share of stimuli in practicality all areas. Be careful of what commitments you make, and don't fear defeat or setbacks. Forward!

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Plenty of competition, but the lively tone of the day should stimulate extraordinary ambition and incentive. Especially favored: Travel, outdoor pursuits.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—When you don't have help and are on your own to figure out ways and means, you usually produce the extra spurt of energy and talent needed. On this kind of day, that's all you'll need.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Just when you may feel things are not going as they should, someone may come up with an idea, and all will be righted. Projects close to your heart can be furthered notably with the right push.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—An average day, but your know-how and tactics can make it better. There is plenty to serve you well if you furnish the generating power.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Don't procrastinate in necessary tasks because of frivolous distractions and a desire for other activities. Confidential and diplomatic matters favored.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Mixed planetary influences prevail, so you must choose your path cautiously, astutely. But do not be hasty in so doing. Be cautious if using tools; in travel and handling liquids.

YOU BORN TODAY are among the world's most active thinkers, yet may withdraw from taking necessary action on a project unless you are encouraged. Put aside fears and doubts. Have more confidence in yourself. Go after what you think worthwhile. You have many qualities for success, but need to relax, remain hopeful and avoid hypersensitivity. Cancerians can excel in commerce, industry, politics, medicine or in the artistic professions. Birthdate of: King Louis XI, of France, Henry Grattan, Irish statesman; John Mason Brown, dramatic critic.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

LEARN HOW TO LIFT

How much can a man carry? The world's weight lifting record might offer a clue but it is not applicable to the working man. Such muscular power involves a technique that is highly developed for this specific purpose.

The carrying process includes lifting, transporting, and lowering the load. Age, sex, height, and body physique determine the amount of stress tolerated. Health enters the picture because those with heart or lung trouble, circulatory disorders, or arthritis have trouble carrying heavy objects.

Sudden heavy lifting and prolonged exertion sprain the muscles and joints. These maneuvers may also influence the circulatory organs and aggravate existing defects such as hernia, weakened back, and degenerating disks. Continuous pressure also affects the bones of the feet.

Backache is the most common complaint among those doing heavy work. From 50 to 60 per cent of rural housewives have this trouble. The performance of women in physical work is about 75 per cent that of men due to weaker construction of bones, muscles, and circulatory organs.

A recent survey among Finnish agricultural workers revealed that they walked about 720 miles a year and carried loads totaling 7,458,000 pounds annually. Average load weighed less than 22 pounds. Some women had to lift and carry a 110-pound milk can eight times a day and transport 220 pounds of wheelbarrow twice a day. Sixty per cent had backache or trouble with their lower extremities.

By lifting properly, the back is spared considerable strain. If a 55-pound object is lifted with the back fully bent, pressure in the last vertebra is 1,210 pounds. With the back slightly bent, it is 650 pounds. And when the weight is lifted straight upward with the muscles of the lower limbs, it is 330. The moral is obvious—learn how to lift to spare the back.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request. TOMORROW: Cocktail Allergy.

IMPENDING STORM

Lottsville Area News

By MRS. RAY WELLS

The Vacation Bible School program of the Lottsville Methodist Church was given during the regular Sunday hour Sunday morning, June 25. The Program opened with welcome songs by all the classes, followed by honors to the American and Christian flags and the Bible with salute songs.

The theme for the school was God's Power For My Life.

A program of songs, exercises and memory verses was presented. The nursery class was under the direction of Mrs. Grant Spelling assisted by Mrs. Rush Chapman Jr., Carol Scott and Beckey Briggs.

Primary one and two, Mrs. Lloyd Price assisted by Betty and Bonnie Miller.

Primary three and four, Mrs. Stanley Emlet, assisted by Mrs. Harold Mallery and Susan Hotchkiss.

Junior class, Mrs. Sheridan Baker, assisted by Mrs. Paul Johnson and Jerry Chapman. The school was directed by Mrs. Lloyd Price.

Award certificates for perfect attendance were presented by the teachers. The teachers were presented certificates of appreciation by Robert Scott, Sunday School Superintendent. Recognition was given to members of Sunday School having birthdays in June.

Mr. Scott announced that the Sunday School picnic will be held at the church July 15.

Mr. Scott gave the Offertory Prayer. This was also Promoted Sunday with certificates presented by the teachers of each class.

Donald Martin was in charge of presenting awards for perfect attendance assisted by Alan Scott. Dee Dee Yeversky received a three months' pin; Crystal Dalrymple and Marvin Johnson, six months' pins; two year wreath, Kathy Chapman, John Chapman, Bradley Chapman, Terry Chapman, Wesley Chapman, Jerry Chapman and Agnes Woodburn. Three year pin: Janet Woodin, Patty Woodin, Amy Reagle, Sue Reagle, Betty and Bonnie Miller, Ernest Hamilton, Virginia Woodin, Barbara Woodburn, Carol Scott, Beckey Briggs and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Price.

The program closed with a song by the congregation. Harold Mallery gave the closing prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Church of Mentor, Ohio, spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. F.F. Church, and visited his father, Mr. Church, who is a patient in Corry Memorial Hospital in Corry.

Bear Lake Area News

By PEGGY OSBORNE

Wednesday the members of the Bear Lake E.U.B. Church held a farewell party for Mrs. Lucille Price, who is going to live next to son Dick Price at Barker, N. Y.

There were about 75 present for the affair. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnston, and Mrs. Lynn Ostrander were in charge of the party. Mrs. Richard Crosby was in charge of the skit put on with the following taking part: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Smith, Mrs. Katherine Smith, Mrs. Katherine Jukes, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Newhouse, Rev. and Mrs. Lynn Ostrander, and Miss Joann Crosby.

Mrs. Price's son and family of Barker, N.Y., were also present for the affair. Mrs. Price was presented with a white corsage. The Y. F. served the refreshments, of jello, cake, coffee, and punch. Mrs. Price's address will be Box 115 Barker, N.Y.

Mrs. Anna Zalik is a patient at Corry Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Thompson and daughter visited his folks at Washington Square, Ohio over the weekend.

Diane and Judy Smith are attending Camp Findley for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Perkins of Youngstown, Ohio, are staying in Bear Lake for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kofod, and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kelfer of Youngstown, Ohio on Sunday.

Tuesday evening there was a Community Action meeting for Bear Lake, Lottsville and Wrightsville, which was held at Wrightsville Community Church basement. Mrs. Lucille Irvine presided at the meeting.
